Coming soon: National Park Ambassador Schools

Working in partnership with local primary school teachers, the National Park Authority Education team has developed new resources for teachers to use out and about in the Park.

The new lessons are based around encouraging children and their teachers to develop confidence in learning outdoors. The lessons are carefully planned to meet curriculum requirements and will support Eco schools, Healthy schools and the participation of the John Muir Award scheme.

Crickhowell Community Primary, Talgarth Community Primary and Mount Street Junior School are already up and running with the scheme. Please view their short film on our website www.beacons-npa.gov.uk/learning to find out more about the National Park Ambassador Schools.

We are the first UK National Park to be officially recognised as 'Working towards becoming dementia-friendly'

In August 2014 the Alzheimer's Society officially recognised Brecon as the first community in Wales to be 'Working to become dementia-friendly'.

In November 2014 the National Park Authority provided members with the implementation plan, which included staff awareness training. Rhiannon Davies, Chair of Brecon Dementia-Friendly Community told the Authority that the National Park was now officially recognised as 'Working towards becoming dementia-friendly'. Rhiannon Davies said: "This is a great achievement for everyone involved. The Brecon Beacons National Park Authority has shown its commitment from the very beginning, so it's absolutely fitting that they have become one of the first organisations in Wales to be awarded this status."

The programme aims to improve inclusion and quality of life for people with dementia by bringing together individuals, groups, organisations and local businesses. The backbone of the National Park Authority's commitment is the drive to raise awareness and understanding about living with dementia through Alzheimer's Society's Dementia Friends initiatives. All current and future staff, as well as volunteers will take part in the Dementia Friends Information sessions, run by local volunteer Dementia Friends Champions. Once the goals are achieved the Brecon Beacons National Park Authority will act as a Champion and use its model to create a blueprint which they will share, to support the family of UK National Parks to do the same.

The National Park Management Plan

This document coordinates and integrates all plans, strategies and actions in the National Park that relate to the two main purposes and the duty which the National Park Authority has been given. In summary these are:

- to protect the natural beauty of the Park
- to help visitors enjoy and understand it
- and to foster the wellbeing of local people.

National Park Management Plan and State of the Park Report

Many organisations have a role to play in the delivery of the Plan which sets a vision for the management of the Park for the next 20 years, whilst also specifying actions which have to be completed within the next five years.

Extensive consultation was undertaken in the preparation of the current Management Plan 2010 -2015. A review of the Plan is underway to decide which of the existing objectives and actions should continue until 2020.

Between mid-February and mid-April 2015 we will be giving the public the chance to tell us what they think about the proposals. The draft Management Plan will be available to view here: <http://www.beacons-npa.gov.uk/the-authority/who-we-are/npmp/management-plan-review/> . Keep an eye out for it from mid-February.

Early in 2015 we will publish the State of the Park Report 2014 which will help us judge how we are doing against delivery of the Plan. It will be available on our website. The State of the Park Report gives an indication of trends across the Brecon Beacons National Park in relation to the six themes identified in the Management Plan which stem from the two purposes and duty identified on the left. For more information please contact the Park's Management Plan Officer, Matthew Scanlon on 01874 624437 or email matthew.scanlon@beacons-npa.gov.uk.

Advanced Charter for Member Support and Development

The National Park Authority has just been awarded the Advanced Charter for Member Support and Development for the second time. The Charter is awarded by the Welsh Local Government Association to encourage local authorities to provide their members with high quality induction and a continuing development programme throughout their terms of office.

Our 24 members undergo induction as part of a 4-5 year development plan, which includes decision making through committees, site visits, meeting community representatives and spending time with our staff 'on the ground' to develop their understanding of the work carried out across the Park.

The WLGA stated that they "commend you on both the quality of the submission and the practice that it represents, you are clearly a beacon of good practice in Wales."

Thanks to all the staff who helped with member development!

Tell us what you think is good about the community you live in ... and what you feel could be improved.

Visit www.ruralvibes.eu/ and have your say by spending five minutes completing the survey.

The survey will be available online until the 29th May 2015.

This project is being led by the Brecon Beacons National Park Authority with 12 partners across North West Europe.

Hay Ho bus service—a new community transport initiative.

Rural Alliances is a €1 million project, encouraging businesses to work with their local community to develop rural vibrancy. It is funded by the EU's Interreg IVB NWE Programme and Welsh Government's Targeted Match Fund.

The power of the Rural Alliances movement is exemplified in the community transport initiative to provide a bus between Hereford and the book town of Hay-on-Wye. Local Authority budget cuts meant a reduction in rural transport services. However, a partnership was then set up between Hay's Chamber of Trade, the Hay Tourism Group, Rail Herefordshire and Herefordshire Ramblers who were able to raise money from donations to keep the bus service going.

The Brecon Beacons National Park Authority with financial support from the Rural Alliances have commissioned a study to show how a community bus service could be started, financed and operated.

A fare will be charged but the initial donations were key to keeping this important tourism and local service in operation, a true partnership between the rural community and local businesses.

The bus service is in fact an improvement on the original one with the bus synchronising its arrivals and departures with train services in Hereford. The project has not gone unnoticed by neighbouring communities who are already in discussions about following this community led approach to public transport cuts.

Trainee Wardens tackle conservation in the Brecon Beacons National Park

In 2014 the Heritage Lottery Fund awarded funding to the Brecon Beacons National Park Authority to provide 12 salaried conservation traineeships over the next three years.

A grant of £908,500 was awarded by the Heritage Lottery Fund 'Skills for the Future' towards the 'Skills in Action' partnership which includes the Brecon Beacons National Park Authority, Pembrokeshire Coast National Park Authority and Torfaen County Borough Council.

The project supports 12 salaried traineeships each year over the next three years, providing individuals with hands-on work based experience in conservation and estate management along with the attainment of a Level 2 City and Guilds qualification in conservation management.

Our first trainees started in September 2014 and have already experienced a wide range of conservation work supervised by existing warden/ranger teams. This has been strengthened by their one day a week college placement at Usk Campus, Coleg Gwent.

In addition to practical work, a busy training schedule has seen all the trainees already successfully complete health and safety courses, REC First Aid course and training for licences to use the special tools of their trade.

January and February sees further training including for using chainsaws, pesticides, trailer towing and 'Hill and Moorland' walking leader courses.

In September, the trainees worked alongside supervising wardens and National Park Archaeologist Natalie Ward, to clear the extensive gorse growth on Pen y crug, the site of a former Iron Age hill fort just outside Brecon. The prickly gorse was cut and bagged (no mean feat!) and later transported to St Fagans National History Museum, where it has since been used to thatch the underside of an Iron Age Roundhouse.

Heritage Lottery Fund – a lasting difference for heritage and people

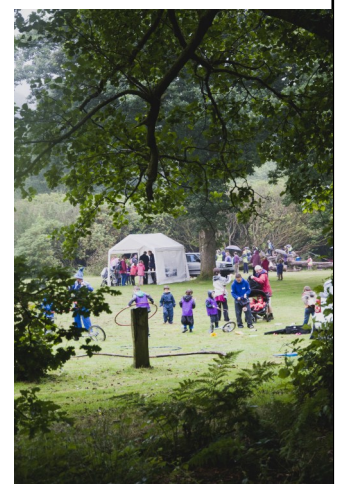

Using money raised through the National Lottery, the Heritage Lottery Fund gives grants to sustain and transform our heritage. From museums, parks and historic places to archaeology, the natural environment and cultural traditions, we invest in every part of our diverse heritage.

The Heritage Lottery Fund's Strategic Framework (2013-2018) clearly sets out that we want to encourage more fundable projects that deliver outcomes for the UK's natural heritage. We want to do more to encourage strong applications from the natural heritage sector.

We offer a number of funding programmes with grants starting from £3,000. Our website www.hlf.org.uk contains all the details of our programmes, funded projects and useful guidance. ### Fair Play Funding Benefits Young People

The Fair Play project provided funding to pay for transport for community groups and schools from disadvantaged areas to participate in one of our education courses or activities within the National Park. 13 community groups and 12 schools participated with over 400 pupils visiting the Park who might not have had the opportunity due to the cost. Carol Freeman, Blaendulais Rainbows and Brownies said: "It was thoroughly enjoyed by all. We can't wait until the spring to come back and visit again. The children gained so much from the visit."

Water Voles return to Llangorse Lake

A Cardiff University student has been trialling methods of surveying water voles at Llangorse lake. The last recordings were in the late 1990s.

A reintroduction programme (led by the Environment Agency Wales in 2008-2010) carried out three separate releases of captive bred water voles.

Regular findings of evidence of water voles help to form a picture of how the released water voles are doing.

Heather Condition Monitoring on Hatterrall Hill

Hatterrall Hill provided the perfect October venue for a training day in heathland condition monitoring for the National Park's team of Heritage Lottery Fund Trainee Wardens and its Black Mountains and Eastern Central Beacons Volunteers. Volunteers make an essential contribution to the running of the National Park and the training day contributed to ongoing work by the Ecology team to assess the health of the hill's important heathland habitat.

Habitat monitoring is an important tool for assessing the condition of a habitat; helping us determine changes in plant communities (good and bad) and thus helping inform how we manage a site. The Hatterrall Ridge is part of the vast Black Mountains Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI), an extensive area of upland moorland and associated habitats. The moorland contains a mosaic of upland heathland plants dominated by heather, bilberry together with crowberry – which were the focus of the day's monitoring efforts.

The heather moorland is part of a special landscape, shaped through ongoing traditional management by generations of Commoners. Livestock grazing, together with practices such as heather burning, have helped sustain the mosaic of characteristic upland plants and support the species which depend upon them. The Red Grouse and the Silurian Moth are just two of the National Park's key upland species which rely on a mosaic of heather and bilberry, of different ages and structures, to provide food and shelter.

Welcome to Jackie Thomas, our new Volunteer Development Officer. She is keen to hear from those of you interested in the opportunities described below if you are able to commit to a minimum of 10 days a year. If this sounds like you please contact Jackie and she will try to find a placement for you. Please contact her on 01874 620451 or jacqueline.thomas@beacons-npa.gov.uk

Volunteers play a vital role in the running of the National Park. Over the last year ten thousand hours were contributed to the maintenance and improvement of the area by a wide range of volunteers, going out in all weather conditions. We owe these people a huge thank you.

People volunteer for a wide range of reasons: to enjoy being outdoors; to meet up with others; become part of a team; to gain experience for their CV; to learn new skills; to pass the time in a useful manner; to contribute to the local community; to escape from friends/family or because it just makes them feel good. While much of the volunteer activity is practical outdoor work, -and we are always keen to find new fit people to help out -there are also opportunities being developed for those of you who might be less active or who don't like getting wet. If you have an interest in history, heritage or the local environment we may have something for you.

New Volunteer Group for the Eastern Central Beacons

On the 27th September we ran an induction day for a newly formed volunteer group within the Eastern Central Beacons. The group is a sister group to the Black Mountains Volunteers who have now been operating for the last two years. The main duties of the group is to help maintain the upland footpaths in the area. The volunteers will also help in recording anti social behaviour. The volunteers will under take training in first aid, navigation, heather monitoring and burning. As with the Black Mountains group, the volunteers will be trained to the point where they can follow a work programme largely independent from the National Park Authority.
